The Team Speaks; Now---?

When the University's football team met yesterday and petitioned for the return of assistant coaches Porter Grant and Tom Gorman, it provided the first bullet of enthusiasm shown by any organization since the two popular football teachers resigned. Now that some unrest is in evidence. THE KERNEL feels that speculation upon the gridiron

Within the last few weeks the University has lost two valuable members of the varsity coaching stalf, and in view of the disastrons 1937 football season, no one should be surprised that there should be considerable speculation upon

Why did these coaches leave the University? What was wrong with the team last year, if anything was

What can the Student Body and the Athletic Council do NOW to strengthen the University in the football wars of

THE KERNEL does not presume to offer itself as a seer which, by a few mystical generalities or perchance a wellchosen word, can solve an athletic problem presenting the many ramifications that are found when a losing team has floundered along its unhappy way. However, The Kernel. can point out that there is "talk" among the students and alumni, and that the Athletic Council, the duly responsible body should be cognizant of this, and that, in view of the fact that Athletic Director and Head Coach C. A. Wynne is soon to present his outline of plans for the future to this body, the Council should endeavor to act more wisely and with more caution than it has ever done in the past.

When, or if, the Council uncovers any facts which necessitute any changes in policy or personnel in the Athletic department, THE KERNEL feels that the facts should be given to the Student Body, perhaps even at called meeting of the Athletic association in Memorial Itall. The student body would like to know just what is happening in its association, and if by chance it should be found that blame lies partly with the student body, then it certainly should be informed.

This is no time for an inflamatory attitude toward our own problems. The times are too propitious for the achievement of a tremendous amount of good for the University and the Commonwealth which it represents. The challenge first must be faced by the Athletic Council in its charting of a future course, in its choice of replacement in the depleted coaching staff, and in its acceptance of a new attitude of cooperation with the student body.

Until this Council has had opportunity to act, has chosen to accept the Student Body or exclude it from its confidence, THE KERNEL is willing to "watch and wait." After that, considering always the best interests of all concerned, it shall choose its course according to the contingencies

GOMPLETE CAMPUS COVERAGE

For A Fearless Faculty

Ost of the tradi-tional attitudes assumed at many large universities is that a professor ought not to imerject much of his personal interpreration into a lecture or a class-room discussion. No belief could be more fallacious or more opposed to the immediate purpose of education.

When a few professors, however, do attempt to minimize this attitude in the endeavor to interpret their work in relation to specific modern problems, principally political and economics, they are hranded and classified as dangerons and undesirable. None of us who is at all interested in the problem of improving education can ever forget the ridiculous and insipid charges made last year and this year against some of our better know professors ...

Lest we seem to be ill-informed, we do acknowledge that some faculty members give the students the benefit of their opinions; but there is 100m for so much more. We do not advocate one particular doctrine or another, but we do advocate that the students take up some beliefs and convictions which they would be willing to defend in an intellectual combat. To assist the students, we exhort the professors to enter the lists.

To those who may think that the students may succumb to a pernicions doctrine, in one held or another, we have only this to say. The purpose of education in the first place is to provide students with the meat and method by which they may live better lives. To exclude arbitrarily the opinion of an authority is the mask of intellectual starvation.

An increasingly large number of students are admitting that it is a waste of time to attend the stock lectures which only repeat what can be found in textbooks. More and more students want the objective facts correlated with problems of current interest. The classroom is patently the proper place for such correlation. The professors are just as patently the persons to direct that correlation .- The Cornell Daily Sun.

Titt earth is degenl erating in these latter days. There are signs that the world is speedily coming to an end. Bribery and corruption abound. The children no longer obey their parents. Every man wants to write a book, and it is evident that the end of the world is speedily approaching."

President Frederick C. Perry of Hamilton College, expressing distrust of "gloomsters who view the world with alarm," has cited these writings taken from an Assyrian tablet dated 2800 B, c. as proof that political prophecy for a dismal future has always been prevalent.

In this way Dr. Perry implies that there is no reason to be concerned with contemporary conditions. Although war is imminent, although new concepts of the state are being formulated, although the old social evils still exist, his argumeni would seem to be that these conditions have always been; consequently, why should we my to solve them?

The attitude of passive acceptance of things as they are, backed by the reasoning expressed by the Indian in Maxwell Anderson's "High Tor" that "Men's monuments make good ruins," has become evident on both courthouse square and campus. A parallel argument would be that since the rosebuds of Richardson's poem will ultimately be gathered, why should they bother 10 bloom. Yet there is the survival of the race

Will tave it on good ambority that a young lad's who is taking a certain social science opened I for book the other day. Now, the mere fact that someone taking this subject opened a book is news enough, but this young lady found iliai her book was about one limitdred pages longer than the test of the books in the class. It upset her no end. She said, "I noticed that it was little th icker than the others, but I thought it was just in tv eves."

What we were doing on the corner of Limestone and Main at two o'clock Saturday morning is of 110 import. The significant thing is that we heard the police telephone ringing furiously. We stood there until a policeman came galloping up and, opened the box. He listened for a few moments, whipped out a notebook and wrote something in it, and then said, "O. K., 1 got it, one package of tohacco, two hamburgers and a chocolate bar with almonds." And we expectetd, at least, a murder! . . .

One of the downtown department stores adorns its windows with female dummies. There is nothing wrong with female dummies, understand, but it does annoy us to have to look at female dummies that have bad figures. Admittedly, these are trying times, what with the Japs and Mae West and everything, but there is absolutely no excuse for having fat dummies. Living human beings cannot help it if they are fat, but dummies, really!

Rumor has it that they are going to move the dispensary into the old law huilding. The psyhology department is to be left holding, what is commonly referred to, as, the hag. And Neville hall is certainly a bag of the first order. Why the University doesn't do something about Neville hall, we have never understood. There may he some sort of sentimental attachment to the place, but that hardly justifies its existence. It will fall in some day, all over Dr. White and his inhihitions, and then they'll be sorry!

Gene Warren, the farmer-politico, has developed a taste for contemporary American poetry. When we saw him the other evening he was listening avidly to a rugged looking chap who was reciting some of the works of Robert W. Service. The fellow had finished "The Shooting of Dan McGrew" and was almost through "The Cremation of Sam McGee." When he reached the part about opening the door of the oven, why, Gene actually looked cold!"

Mr. Sidney Buckley (may his tribe increase) has been keeping himself out of the news lately. But we are reliably informed that he was fined one dollar ($1.00) for cheating at solitaire in the ATO house last week. Buckley, who is studying to become a Faro dealer, has refused to make a statement regarding the punishment. Just goes about muttering to himself.

We love these pithy hits of news that the Lexington Herald uses as fillers. We saw one the other day that interested us tremendously. It said. "The population of Afghanistan in 1910 was greater by two thirds of a million than it was in 1890." We suddenly realized that we were sorely lacking in information about Afghanistan. We had heard of Afghanistan of course, but we didn't dream that they were increasing that rapidly. Something should be done about it because we figured that if it continued. why, in 2038 practically everyone in the world will be an Afghan. We hate to think of any of our great grandchildren as Afghans. Afghans don't appeal to us.

Resolutions In Memory Of Professor Enoch Grehan

Presented to the Faculty of the College of 1sts and Sciences, January 3, 1938

Cixer this Faculty was last in session, one of its most beloved members has died, Professor Enoch Grehan who passed away Saturday, December 11, 1937

Professor Grehan labored for the University to the very ast, for he discharged his duties to the full, even on the day of his death. He mer his classes as usual although unwell, and as Head of the Department of Journalism was host to isiting high school students of Journalism when stricken.

Professor Grehan lived his long life of usefulness in the ounty where he was born, Favetie, Kennicky. He was gradtated from Transvlvania University in 1891; and while a andent there, he attained distinction as an orator winning medals at a time when intercollegiate forensic contests were the great academic events in Kentucky. Immediately after graduation he entered the newspaper profession and ocupied various positions with Lexington newspapers. He followed the lanstings throughout the state, was city editor, news editor, editorial paragrapher, dramatic critic. In 1914 ne joined the Faculty of the College of Arts and Sciences in he University of Kentucky where he crowned his work by organizing and directing the Department of Journalism. When he came, he said in his first conversation with one of he members of this Committee. "I intend to give to the University the best that is in me;" and so he did to the fullest neasure. The Department of Journalism, the Kentucky Kernel, the printing plant, and a host of devoted and sucesslul graduates attest to his imwearied efforts.

Professor Grehan loved people; he loved his work; and above all, he loved his students. He was constantly close to them, aiding them with instruction, council, and admonition. Nothing gave him so much satisfaction as to see them develop and become successful men and women in their profession.

tle endeared himself to his colleagues through his delightful personality, kindly humor, right educational views. and willingness to undertake any task imposed upon him. We shall miss his presence and his council.

The Faculty of the College of Arts and Sciences hereby express our regret at his loss to us and to the University, exend our sympathy to his family, and spread this memorial upon the minutes of the Faculty.

A copy of this memorial will be sent to Mrs. Grehan and the local papers.

STAG-NATE as sorority stomps invariably are, the Kappassault parted the porte-cocheres on the University "spring social season" Saturday night, Leisurely-paced, the dance marked the first of the annual invasions of the secondaryschool brigade, which descends on such affairs in a sweat of energetic dancing. Appearances indicated that every high by dating Mary K in the afternoon school boy or girl in this or neighboring dominions had been and Opal at nite. Kappatured and turned loose in the Alumni gymnasium.

Watching a dance come to life always invokes a queer sensation.

Saturday night at five minutes to? nine the ballroom was empty save for the orchestra, which tooted medilatively to itself. Twenty-seven ciusters of balloons, resembling Gargantuan grapes, dangled mysicriously from the ceiling, sway-ing in the soft light. At nine, two desperate-looking stags entered: semried oil somewhere. The floor music, loud and false in the huge vacant space. An orehestra in fuil regaiia, playing to a dim-lighted, arbarically decorated dance-drome without a soul in it—there was omething creepy about it. Then wo couples entered; and two more. The tension lifted. Lost on the loor, the eight early-comers danced speculatively and with some seif-consciousness until people began to pour in more deelsively. The dance wasted in other pursuits.

Huddled in a little wad in front f and lo the left of the bandstand, with haif the space unused, the dancers fidgeted through their steps seeming moderately happy about

EXACTLY how an athletic department exists unmenaced day by day after playing papa to a lamentable football season is something that escapes our comprehension. Nevertheless. Kentucky lost six out of ten grid parties last year and then tried to soap the public by "accepting" the resignations of two of its most admired football faculty members. It strikes Johnnie Fan as a peculiar method for rebuilding the wreckage left by Georgia Tech and Alabama, when pigskin big shots, without a murmur of objection, liberated two of the finest gentlemen in the game, Porter Grant and Tom Gorman. And Johnnie, in a reflective attitude, might think that the big shots were far from rectifying the disorder when Porter and "Kitty" voluntarily threw in the towel.

Newspapers have been bloated with reports of nationally famous coaches resigning. In many cases these mentors rip their contracts to the tune of the howling wolves and "stadium soreheads." South Carolina, Georgia. Pennsylvania. Michigan, Southwestern, Mississippi. Oregon State are victims of coaching resignations. But Ole Kentucky, despite her loss-loaded record, placidly toddles along, seemingly invulnerable to the yapping wolves. Why?

In the first place, nobody seems to care. Coach Wynne admitted last week that he had not received a single nasty letter. This proves definitely that the State is slumbering in indifference. And in the second place, it seems that Coach Wynne is protected by some unnamed big stick that frightens potential critics.

Encircled by these circumstances, Mr. Wynne can eagerly speculate on next season in comparative quiet. But the spurious peacefulness was doomed inexorably to a punch. And it came yesterday, surprisingly enough, from Mr. Wynne's Little Boy Blues, who assembled in McVey hall for the sole purpose of insisting that the University's Athletic moguls to do something toward reacquiring Grant and Gorman.

Not only did they insist that the Athletic ring take action in this matter but that unless positive attempts were made to bring back the G-men, the entire squad would quit local football endeavors. If you think the Blues were insincere you should have heard their caucus. Dealing with a football club is different from dealing with students and council members. If the team feels that its desires are justifiable, watch out, Main Street.

Who can better criticize a coach than his team. Surely the Wildcats' emotions on this subject show vividly that Grant's and Gorman's evacuation met with complete disapproval of the squad. Futhermore, we think that if Mr. Wynne had resigned perhaps his team might have presented the same formal protest.

Because of the athletic department's strict closed mouth policy we understand only the player's angle. Until they are convinced that Grant and Gorman are unobtainable, the club has every right to be indignant

With so many real problems to be solved and mended it seems that the University's Athletic Roosevelts have avoided the obvious ailments causing our football shortcomings Instead of yanking some of the weeds out of the garden, the bosses extracted two valuable plants, in the hope that the wolves would be satisfied. Now let them yank couple of weeds.

The Athletic council convene Wednesday with manifold intentions. Until that assembly has fin-ished its business, just hold your haircomb, for as the voice of Griffith Stadium would say, "Sumpin's gonna happen."

tucky's downfall. Michigan State has vanquished its foes in five of seven encounters, losing to the University of Miehi-gan by three points and the University of California by two points.

Kentucky, despite three efforts, has never managed to conquer the Spartans on their own floor. The 'Cats have an opportunity to gain revenge later in the season when
